MPs versus Councillors

MPs represent about 92,000 people.

MPs work on local and UK-wide issues.

Councillors represent about 8,000 people.

Councillors focus on local issues.

How do local councillors support democracy?

A councillor's primary role is to represent the people in their local area. Councillors provide a bridge between the community and the council. They do this by speaking up on behalf of local residents about issues affecting the community.

Why does local democracy matter?

Democracy means citizens have a choice about who represents them.

Democracy provides a system to deal with a range of different views in the decision-making process.

Local communities are important for democracy.

Local democracy means having a say on what you want for your local area, and who makes these decisions

What services do I need to live?

How do you get to school?

Where do you spend your free time?

Where do you buy your food?

What happens to your rubbish?
